1. _____ are constantly changing collections of reusable components, principles and guidelines.

○ Components

◉ Design systems

○ Brand style guide

> ⊘ Correct
> Correct! Design systems are constantly changing collections of reusable components, principles and guidelines.

1 / 1 point

2. Does a design system consist of objectives and shared values?

○ No

◉ Yes

> ⊘ Correct
> Correct! Aligning design teams around a standard set of goals is critical. It will help create a vision and may ensure everyone looks in the same direction. These objectives will change over time, which is natural. So, changes need to be widely communicated.

1 / 1 point

3. Material design is the visible elements of a brand, such as color, design and logo, that identify and distinguish the brand in the minds of consumers. It's referred to as brand identity.

◉ False

○ True

> ⊘ Correct
> Correct! Brand identity and language are the visible elements of a brand, such as color, design and logo, that identify and distinguish the brand in consumers' minds.

1 / 1 point

4. _____ are the building instructions that allow you to use components logically and consistently across all products.

○ Design systems

○ Components

◉ Patterns

> ⊘ Correct
> Correct! Patterns are the building instructions that allow you to use components logically and consistently across all products.

1 / 1 point

5. Design principles lay a better foundation and guide a team through the creation and ongoing implementation of a design system.

◉ True

○ False

> ⊘ Correct
> Correct! Design principles lay a better foundation and guide a team through the creation and ongoing implementation of a design system.

1 / 1 point